CANDIDATE EVALUATION AND SCORING MATRIX

Candidate Name: Evelyn Rossi
Position: Group Product Manager
Interview Date: August 16, 2026
Interview Panel: VP of Product, Lead UX Designer, Director of Engineering

Scoring Scale:
1 = Poor (Does not meet minimum requirements)
3 = Satisfactory (Meets expectations)
5 = Excellent (Significantly exceeds expectations)

Competency 1: Technical Acumen & Domain Knowledge
Score: 4.5 / 5.0

Notes: Evelyn demonstrated an exceptional grasp of API integrations and microservices architecture. Her case study presentation on transitioning a legacy platform to a cloud-native environment was highly detailed and technically sound. She easily fielded complex questions from the Engineering Director regarding latency optimization.

Competency 2: Product Strategy & Vision
Score: 4.0 / 5.0

Notes: She possesses a strong user-centric mindset. Her framework for prioritizing the product backlog using weighted shortest job first (WSJF) aligns perfectly with our agile methodologies.

Competency 3: Leadership & Cross-Functional Influence
Score: 3.0 / 5.0

Notes: Satisfactory, but left some room for doubt. When asked about managing conflicts between the sales team's feature requests and engineering's technical debt, her responses were somewhat passive. She leans heavily on consensus-building rather than decisive leadership in high-pressure scenarios.

Competency 4: Cultural Add & Communication
Score: 5.0 / 5.0

Notes: Highly articulate, transparent, and empathetic. She asked insightful questions about our team's work-life balance and psychological safety, indicating she would be a highly supportive manager.

Overall Average Score: 4.12 / 5.00

Panel Recommendation: ADVANCE TO OFFER

Final Consensus:

Despite minor hesitations regarding her assertiveness in conflict resolution, Evelyn is undoubtedly the strongest technical candidate we have interviewed in this cohort. The panel unanimously agrees to move forward with a formal offer at the Senior/Group level, with a recommended base salary at the 75th percentile of the band.
